Jennifer Greene

Since as early as she can remember, Jennifer has been acutely aware of the power of space and the impact that surroundings have on its inhabitants. As an innately keen observer and highly sensitive person she has placed importance on environments, combined with her emotionally connected nature, which led her to the interior design profession. As a designer, she defines success by the degree to which her practice enhances people's experiences within spaces. Jennifer is relentlessly committed to the details and to building lasting relationships based on trust and respect.

Her family is her other passion. Jennifer and her partner have three little boys and three furry family members. Their life is a constant adventure filled with joy, a bit of chaos, and, most of all, love. They are committed to raising their boys to be respectful, kind and compassionate, and to appreciate nature, music and the arts, and diversity. Jennifer hopes to be a model for them of how women can be loving, ever-present mothers, and to encourage them to pursue their passions and achieve their personal version of success.
